Product description

The product is a transaction, custody and administration service for investors in connection with a range of managed funds which the investor may select from. In return for the provision of these services the investor pays a combination of fixed dollar and asset-based fees.

The product is described in the IDPS Guide which forms part of the Morgan Stanley Portfolio Wrap Investor Brochure which contains a description of Morgan Stanley's Portfolio Wrap. The product is made available to investors by arrangement with Morgan Stanley as the promoter of the product and is a component of Morgan Stanley's Portfolio Wrap.

Key product attributes

The product allows the investor to decide to acquire or dispose of interests in a range of managed funds which are accessible through the product. It provides access to an extensive range of wholesale priced managed funds which are not usually available to individual investors. It is also likely to provide cost reductions through the pooling of investor funds or through the netting of transactions.

All managed funds the investor acquires through the product are held on trust for the investor by Clearstream or is sub-custodian.

In addition to handling these transactions the product also provides a comprehensive administration and reporting service for investors.

Clearstream does not provide any advice or recommendations about the investments available through the product.

Morgan Stanley's role in relation to Morgan Stanley's Portfolio Wrap, through which the product is accessible by an investor

Morgan Stanley is the investor's agent. The investor authorises Morgan Stanley to lodge instructions, including changes to the investor's personal details, with Clearstream on the investor's behalf.

Morgan Stanley is responsible for any advice they provide on the investor's managed funds portfolio, including giving the investor advice on which investments best suit the investor's investment objectives and financial needs, the potential risks and returns of the product and the managed funds available through the product.
